Democratic Idea of "Pitiless Publicity."

Washington, July 28, (Special)—The most ubiquitous form of "pitiless publicity" fostered by the administration is that of the Democratic campaign publicity bureau in the Department of Commerce.

Since the passage of the Underwood tariff law the Department of Commerce has been to the perpetrators of that outrage the object of their tenderest solicitude. Every wish of the Department has been indulged; every recommendation of Secretary Redfield has met with congressional sanction.

The reason for this partiality is becoming more and more apparent as the months roll on: Secretary Redfield is the anointed champion of the Democratic tariff policy. He has commanded the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce ("the spearhead of the department," as he terms it) and has pressed government employees into service. With a generous allowance from Congress, dipped from the public purse, he is running as busy a little Democratic campaign publicity bureau as one could wish to see.

Note the following items in the appropriations for the Department of Commerce for the fiscal year 1916: "To further promote and develop the foreign and domestic commerce of the United States, $75,000; field investigations at home and abroad, $50,000; to promote and develop the commerce of the United States with South and Central America, $75,000; for commercial attaches, $100,000." All of these sums to be expended under the personal direction of the Secretary of Commerce. What the Secretary says, goes. Here are the sinews for "hidden" advertising. Three hundred thousand dollars appropriated for purposes of present doubtful utility at a time when economy should have been the watchword of the government! What could have been done "to further promote and develop" commerce after the Democratic tariff law was passed, it is difficult to imagine.

The concrete result of these appropriations, aside from the money devoted to printer's ink publicity, is the appointment of a large number of "deserving Democrats," some of whom have been sent to Europe as commercial attaches and are drawing large salaries to study commercial conditions which are in temporary abeyance. Others as special agents, whose chief function is to gumshoe around the country, snoop into the business of manufacturers, and then render reports so partisan and abusive as to be utterly valueless for economic purposes, even if their authors had any ideas respecting the science of economy. The report on the pottery industry in New Jersey and on the hosiery industry in Montgomery county, Pennsylvania, are examples of the lengths to which these political pets will go in villifying the manufacturers of the country.

Still others are being put on the payroll to correct "the methods of collecting export statistics." The terrific slump in our export trade following Democratic control convinced Secretary Redfield that "the statistics of our export trade are incorrect to an extent sufficient to alter at times a trade balance on mercantile transactions which is actually in our favor into one which appears to be the reverse." It is apparent that Mr. Redfield received this illumination some time after August, 1914, when the balance of trade for that month was over $16,000,000 against us, and he sent Dr. Frank R. Rutter, assistant chief of the bureau to the New York custom house, to fix that little matter. The large exports due to war orders having, for the time being, put that subject in the background, Dr. Rutter is again at his desk in Washington.

But it is the audacity of campaign publicity work at the taxpayers' expense which amazes. All this Democratic propaganda, furthermore, is sent out under government frank. For some months the "Commerce Reports," which are intended to be devoted solely to matters concerning our trade, have been carrying pages of matter having nothing to do with commerce, and adulterary of the administration. In plain words, the public is getting a correspondence course, at its own expense, full of partisan teaching designed to create favorable feeling toward the administration, and this whether the public wants it or not. Mr. Redfield is running a Democratic campaign publicity bureau on forced subsidization. He will close in 1916.

Do Not Waste the Straw.

The practice of burning straw is not as common in Ohio as it is in some of the more western states. However, many farmers do not realize the true value of the straw stack. The fertilizing value of the straw from a ten acre wheat field is from $25 to $40. If the straw is used as bedding and the manure used, this value of the straw is saved and in addition thus used will absorb a large amount of liquid manure that might otherwise be wasted.

Eliminate the Fly.

During the present hot weather everyone is fighting the house fly. By the expenditure of sufficient pains, anyone may prevent flies breeding on his premises, but this will not rid him of the danger from flies if his neighbors are careless.

There is, however, no excuse at the present time for permitting flies to breed in anything like the numbers in which they have done in the past. The vast majority of flies develop from eggs which are laid in horse manure, and there is a simple way of destroying the larvae, as the young insects or maggots, which hatch from the eggs are called. Sprinkling the manure heap with a solution of $\frac{1}{2}$ pound of powdered hellebore and 10 gallons of water will destroy, according to recent experiments, from 88 to 99 per cent of the larvae in the manure.

Gettysburg.

After a week's sight-seeing in Chicago, C. J. Miller and wife returned home last Friday well satisfied with their trip and without casualty befalling them.

The Hershey reunion will be held August 3 on the fair ground. L. S. Gilbert and wife of Covington appeared in our village in their new auto the other day, to run which he has become quite an adept.

I. M. Petersime's class of young married people of our M. E. Sunday school held its monthly meeting last Friday night at the home of C. L. Dershem. A goodly number was in attendance and enjoyed a good social time.

Mrs. Sarah Rohr has taken apartments with her daughter, Mrs. P. B. Moul, on account of her failing health.

Mrs. Harry Leiter and her children, of Lewisburg, became visitors among friends in our city, to be joined over Sunday by her husband to complete the visit.

P. B. Miller and wife visited their son-in-law, Rev. J. A. Hoffman, at Bowling Green, going last Saturday morning and returning today, incidentally taking in the Chautauqua held there, and concluding on Sunday night of their stay. Mr. Miller reports that weather conditions are very similar to what has been in vogue here. He observed during his trip that wheat cutting was not finished; the apple crop presented a flattering prospect for plenty in many of the orchards.

Miss Ethel Wells of Montezuma was the guest of her grandmother, Mrs. M. J. Coburn, over Sunday.

Wheat threshing has begun and Grant Myers, I suppose, will claim the honor of first to thresh his crop in this neighborhood. His yield did not justify expectations, and the probability is that the continued wet weather will have an unfavorable result upon the yield, not only in the quantity, but in the quality as well. This has been a difficult time to harvest the crop. The work was largely increased to secure it.

Rules for Handling Eggs on the Farm.

Heat is the great enemy of eggs, both fertile and infertile. Farmers are urged to follow these simple rules, which cost nothing but time and thought and will add dollars to the poultry yard returns:

1. Keep the nests clean; provide one nest for every four hens.
2. Gather the eggs twice daily.
3. Keep the eggs in a cool dry room or cellar.
4. Market the eggs at least twice a week.
5. Sell, kill or confine all male birds as soon as the hatching season is over.

Some "Rascal Whippings."

From the Rascal Whipper, Moravian Falls, N. C.

Tariff and payrolls go together. Give us protection or we bust. Wilson's psychology has become pie-colicky.

It is always low tide for the Ship of State when the free-trade winds blow.

A little over sixteen months more and "Farewell, Donkey Party."

Free-trade, free soup and free starvation. A Democratic trinity, b'gosh.

If it wasn't for the war times would be much worse than they are. A man who can't see, that fact needs boring for the simples.

Your "Uncle Eli" has seen an evil under the sun. The free-traders have dug a "100 million war tax" pit and they shall fall in it.

The nation is aching for an opportunity to give Mr. Free-Trade Tariff Wilson the worst drubbing ever administered a candidate by a busted and disgusted country.

The difference between good times and bad times is the difference between a Republican and a Democratic administration. That is all.

Watchful Waiting Woodrow said they could pass a tariff bill that would not injure business. Let gaunt-tellied, baggy-kneed business take the stand.

It may have been noticed that Woodpile Wilson's tariff for revenue only lacks a hundred million dollars a year producing the "only."

Even a single four years' term is that much too long for a free-trade Democratic president of an industry-fostering republic like the United States.

It does not require a prophet to announce that the next president of the United States will be a protective tariff Republican.

England has a hard time establishing an army of 3,000,000 men. But Wilson's free-trade farce created an army of 3,000,000 American jobless working-men.

The American voters expect to indorse one plank in Mr. Wilson's Baltimore platform. At the next election they will unanimously approve of his one-term policy.

The only hope of this nation is a tariff sufficient to protect this nation's industrial and agricultural interests, and Wilson will discover that fact the next time the people speak. But it will do him no good then.

Even the Democrats are confessing that the Wilson tariff is a dismal failure.

The man who broke his back trying to lift himself by his own bootstraps was just as wise as a free-trade president who thinks he can knock the props out from under business and then make a country prosperous.

The people are not objects of charity and they resent the suggestion of national and state aid. What they want is protection of their legitimate jobs, and the Democrats have never shown any disposition to protect jobs.

It may be the duty of the government to connect the jobless man with the manless job, but the jurisdiction of the Democratic party doesn't extend across the ocean, and that's where all the good jobs have gone under free-trade.

Tariff was created for the purpose of providing jobs for our American workmen, but free-trade sent the jobs and the country's money to cheap laborers abroad, and you Democrats think that's statesmanship.

An Indianapolis paper said that the government's present relief plans for the unemployed recall the successful methods of 1894. How many Democrats remember who was president in 1894?

Statistics report that 7,500,000 men have been destroyed to date as a result of the European war. That's just two and a half times as many men as the Wilson free-trade tariff put out of jobs in this country, and that's enough.

What is the difference between the merchant who credits bad debtors and Uncle Sam's government under Woodrow? Well, beloved, the difference is that there is no difference. Both have been ruined by too much free-trade.

Business may be sweeping the country, as Mr. Wilson so dreamily declares, but up to the time we go to press the dust it has swept into the eyes of the 3,000,000 unemployed American workmen prevents them from seeing any of their old jobs.

Whipping Cream.

Often the housewife finds that the cream she has will not whip. Dairy specialists point out that, to obtain satisfactory results in whipping cream, it should be cold and of the right thickness, containing about 30 per cent or more of butterfat. Ordinary cream, designated as coffee cream, is altogether too thin to give good results. The whipping cream, as delivered by the milkman, contains 30 to 40 per cent of butterfat. Thoroughly chill the cream before whipping by placing it in a covered bowl on the ice. The whipping process is also aided and hastened by standing the bowl in a pan of ice water.

California Arsenic Spring.

Arsenic in quantities surpassing the percentage of the only other spring of its kind in the world has been discovered in the waters of the springs at Arrowhead, north of San Bernardino, by Dr. F. C. S. Sanders at Berkeley, and as a result the resort in the local mountain foothills is expected to become one of the most famous spots in America.

According to the analysis made by Curtis & Tomkins, of San Francisco, analytical chemists, as a result of Dr. Sanders' discovery, the water at Arrowhead was found to contain one-twentieth of a grain of arsenic to the gallon, while that of the only other known spring in the world, at Bourboule, France, contains one-sixty-seventh of a grain to the gallon. This latter percentage of arsenic is found in steam caves in Waterman canyon.

Professor Gilbert Ellis Bailey, of the University of Southern California, is at the Arrowhead, making an investigation of the discovery, and his findings will be awaited with much interest by the medical and scientific world.

The springs at Bourboule, France, are considered to be of such value that the government has erected a sanatorium costing $3,000,000 for the benefit of the French people.

The Natives of Alaska.

According to the government statistics, the natives of Alaska are about 26,000 in number, and they are spread over more than 350,000 of the 590,000 square miles of the territory. Their small settlements extend along 10,000 miles of coast and on both sides of the Yukon River and its tributaries for a distance of more than 2,500 miles. One of the supervision districts contains a full 100,000 square miles, the others average more than 65,000 square miles each. Of the natives of Alaska, approximately 11,000 belong to six tribes of Indians in southeastern and southern Alaska, and in the valley of the Yukon. About 11,000 are Eskimos on the western and northwestern coasts, along the Bering Sea, the Bering Straits and the Arctic Ocean. Something more than 3,000 are Aleuts and mixed races through the Aleutian Islands. —Christian Herald.
